Crucial Weekend for Rebels

This coming weekend is a crucial one for the Drayton Valley Rebels in the North Central Alberta Intermediate Hockey League. In fact, it will mean to make or not to make the league playoffs for the local team.

Starting Thursday night the green and white squad will take on the Fort Saskatchewan

Huskies at the Centennial Civic Centre. From there the Rebs stay right at home and entertain the powerful Stettler Imperials at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday night and again at 2:00 p.m. on Sunday afternoon.

Three games in four days against the cream of the crop in the N.C.A.I.H.L. is a tall order for the Rebels, however, on the other hand here is a golden opportunity for the local team who sit pretty while the opposition comes to them.

A sweep of three victories would put the Rebels right in the thick of the battle for playoff contention. The Rebels have not been that far off the pace during the first half of the schedule.

Local hockey fans have an interesting weekend ahead in the three upcoming games. The Rebels are still very much alive and they plan to be in the post season playoffs, so we can look forward to three tremendous hockey games this weekend.

EXPERTS CLAIM MOST PORK OVERCOOKED

The general consensus of opinion among delegates attending the National Pork Industry Conference, held recently in Lincoln, Nebraska, was that most pork products are overcooked.

According to A. Reddon, livestock specialist with the Alberta Animal Industry Division who attended the conference, an internal temperature of from 185 to 190 degrees F. recommended on meat thermometers registers 17 degrees F. ham and shoulder cuts should be cooked until the thermometer registers 170 degrees F. if the bone has been removed, and until it registers 185 degrees F. if the bone has been left in.
